

What families are saying about MRSS:

"Even in the short amount of time we have spent with you, the level of calm in the house has dramatically changed. The intentional pause to respond vs. react has been huge. We are no longer at a crisis level, we're in long-term learning mode. I really don't know how we could thank you enough for what you've done for us!"

"His anger has just been better and he's been listening better."

"We have literally learned more in the last five weeks with you that we have in 13 years of seeking help prior to this."

"...really good advice for managing the brain and trauma, and how the brain gets stuck, understanding traumatized brain and how it processes differently."

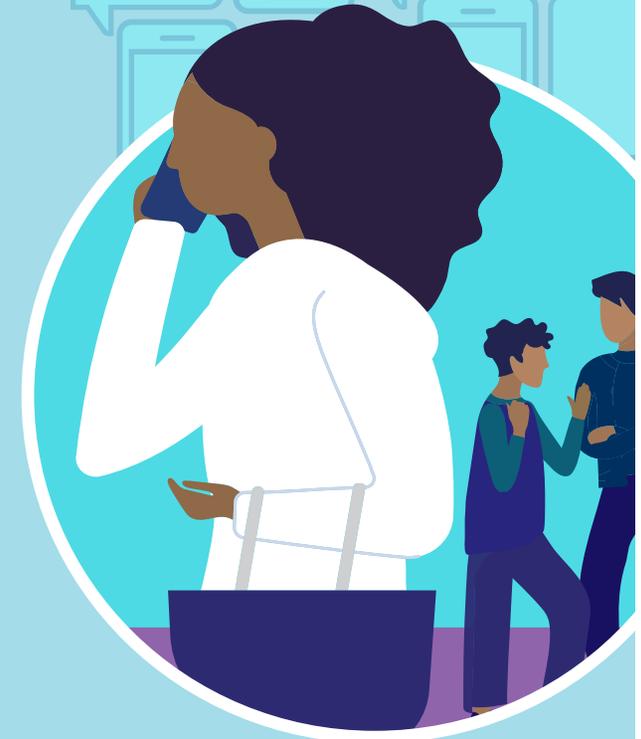

"Support from PPS (Parent Peer Support) was helpful and gave me ideas for how to address some challenges. Behavior overall has improved and he has learned to manage his emotions better and communicates better."

How do I get started with MRSS?

The first step is your call.

You will talk with a trained staff person about what's happening, and they will take your contact information. They are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

An MRSS staff person will reach out and arrange to meet.

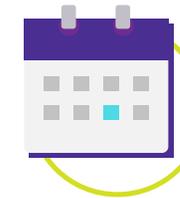

Within a short time, an MRSS staff person will be in touch with you by phone to make arrangements to respond where you are. The MRSS staff will arrive within 60 minutes or at a time convenient for your family.

What happens when they respond?

Upon arrival, the MRSS therapist is ready to help.

They will work with you and your family to help resolve the situation that led to the call. This may include a safety assessment and de-escalation strategies. The therapist will stay as long as needed until everyone feels calm.

Once the situation is calm,

The therapist will offer up to 42 days of intensive support which could include home-based psychotherapy, skill building, peer support, and referral to on-going community services and resources to help your family's path to success.
